Time for warm-weather sippers

BY ANTHONY GISMONDI, SPECIAL TO THE SUN MAY 25, 2012

We begin with a terrific little red from Argentina made by acclaimed Italian winemaker Alberto Antonini and company in Mendoza.

The first long weekend of the year may be the most eagerly awaited break from work for rain-weary West Coasters, especially if the weather

The 2010 has an enticing mix of red and black fruit flavours streaked with dried herbs, pep-per, mineral and smoky notes. A classy, Euro-style red (showing restraint) suitable for a wide variety of grilled meats and birds.

or hike, hit the beach, attend a barbecue, work in the garden, read a book or simply hang and do nothing.
